The nomination of Chaudhry Abdul Majid as the new Prime Minister of the so called AJK put a full stop on much of the preceding speculation. There were reportedly hectic parleys before consensus within the victorious side, the PPP, could be reached on the name of the new Prime Minister. Former Prime Minister Barrister Sultan Mehmood's candidature for the prime ministerial office was almost finalized, as is indicated in one of the reports included in the issue, that he would take oath as the next prime minister of the so called AJK. The report has been accommodated precisely to bring out the extent of uncertainty regarding the issue. Nevertheless, Majid was the final choice for the post after intense discussions took place within the PPP under Pakistani President Asif Ali Zardari and Prime Minister Yusuf Raza Gilani.

Meanwhile, Sardar Yaqoob Khan of the PPP, who is also a former prime minister of the so called AJK was elected the next president by majority of votes. He will succeed Raja Zulqarnain who will complete his tenure on the 25th August, 2011. Interestingly, the Interim Constitution of AJK 1974 Act requires that the next president be elected a month in advance before the term of the current incumbent expires.

Even though Cross LoC trade resumed after months of breakdown, it is yet to gain momentum. There was a drop in the number of total trucks passing across even as the issue of increasing the number of trading days from two to four per week was discussed just before the Indo Pakistan Foreign Ministerial talks in New Delhi last month. Nonetheless, the traders in AJK have expressed happiness on the increase in the number of CBMs between the two countries which could probably enhance the level of cross LoC trade and transport in future.

Peer Muhammad, Feeble infrastructures: G-B still reeling from last year's damages

The Express Tribune, July 28, 2011

ISLAMABAD: People from the remote areas of Gilgit-Baltistan (G-B) have expressed concern over the government's negligence in repairing roads and bridges damaged in last year's floods. They stated that they face much difficulty while crossing these damaged roads and bridges, most of which are built over fast flowing waters. The infrastructure damaged by the floods last year had severed the region from the rest of the country for almost one and a half month.

Most of the damaged infrastructure in remote areas of G-B, including Qadamabad, Hussainabad (Ishqamghoro), Dass Payeen and Thalti, still remains unrepaired and is posing threat to the lives of locals in case of further floods. Local representatives on July 27 demanded the government to repair the damaged roads and bridges as a priority.

Raja Riaz, PPP continues 'reconciliatory policy' in AJK

Daily Times, July 25, 2011

LAHORE: The ninth legislative council of AJK took oath on July 25 as the result of 48 seats out of 49 has been notified by the election commission. According to the latest position after the elections on 'reserved seats', the PPP leads the House with 29 seats while the second largest party is PML-N with 11 legislators. The Muslim Conference led by former Prime Minister Sardar Attique has four members in the House and MQM has representation with two members while All Parties Hurriyat Conference (APHC) has one female member in the House.

The PPP continued its 'policy of reconciliation' in AJK as well and the seat given to the APHC was conceded to Mrs Mehrunnisa, deputy speaker in the last assembly and wife of APHC leader Yousaf Naseem. She was an active member of Muslim Conference but contested the election under the banner of APHC and the PPP supported her. This fact also indicates the unannounced alliance of the PPP and the Muslim Conference.

Shahbbir Mir, Post landslide: Displaced Haramosh locals threaten to block Gilgit-Skardu highway

GILGIT: The government's inability to provide adequate relief to the people of Haramosh valley has triggered unrest among the locals. They have threatened to block the main highway connecting Gilgit with Skardu, in a bid to have the rulers address their problems. With a population of nearly 300, Kholtoro is a remote village in Haramosh valley located midway off the road between Skardu and Gilgit, and is about 100 kilometres from Gilgit. Back in April, nearly 200 people were displaced after sporadic landslides demolished houses in Khaltoro, forcing residents to stay in tents provided by Gilgit-Baltistan's disaster management authority. The landslide also damaged water and irrigation channels, causing threat of an impending drought in the valley where the residents mostly depend on agriculture and livestock for their sustenance.

Kashmir slipping away

Daily Times, July 26, 2011

The issue of Kashmir seems to become more complicated as Pakistan's direct involvement in its affairs and unsightly handling of the matters is doing more damage to it rather than benefitting it. Recently, general elections for Azad Jammu Kashmir's (AJK's) Legislative Assembly were held in which mainstream political parties of Pakistan participated in full force. The Pakistan People's Party (PPP) dominated the polls. It also won six seats out of eight in the reserved seats elections on July 24, which is a logical consequence of its victory in AJK's elections. Unfortunately, AJK witnessed widespread use of administrative machinery, pressure and violence for all kinds of pre- and post-poll rigging by the PPP, the PML-N and the MQM. The political parties' enthusiastic participation in the AJK elections has questioned the status quo of the disputed territory as an independent state and negated its people's right to self-determination. The situation has only added to their despondency as their cause has been left far behind in this game of power.

Shabbir Mir, Ultimatum: 'Lift ban on sale of Timber or prepare for legal battle'

The Express Tribune, July 27, 2011

GILGIT: Lawmakers hailing from Gilgit-Baltistan's (G-B) Diamer valley served on ultimatum to the government: allow transportation of impounded timber rotting in Chilas or let the issue be settled in court. "If the government cannot take a decision on this issue, we will be forced to approach the courts for justice," opposition leaders including Bashir Ahmed, Haji Gulbar, Rehmat Khaliq and Janbaz Khan told the media in Gilgit on July 26.

Hundreds of feet of timber have been lying unattended alongside the Karakoram Highway in Chilas for as much as a decade, following the imposition of a ban on lumber movement. The purpose of the ban was to discourage illegal logging in Gilgit's Diamer valley, which was once Pakistan's biggest forests reserve. The ban came after wide-scale commercial deforestation stripped much of the area bare.

The Express Tribune, July 22, 2011

GILGIT: Lawmakers in the Gilgit-Baltistan (G-B) Assembly on July 21 accused G-B Chief Minister Mehdi Shah of blocking an inquiry against illegal appointments made in the police force. They demanded that all such appointments be annulled. the task of restoration of KKH will be given to a Chinese company," Shah stated as a lawmaker, Mutabiat Shah, voiced dissatisfaction over the slow pace of work on the lake that has cut off more than 25,000 people in the Gojal area.

Report Examines Chinese Mining Companies' Inroads into Pakistan-Controlled Mineral-Rich Gilgit Baltistan Region, and Protests by Locals

July 6, 2011

In Gilgit Baltistan more Than 100 local rights defenders are locked up in Pakistani jails and face sedition charges for denying space to the Chinese and Pakistani mining companies. At a time when the distance between American and Pakistani priorities in the post-Osama period continues to grow, China is passionately vouching for Pakistan's entry into the Shanghai Cooperation Organization (SCO), which is seen as the upcoming Asian NATO. For some time now, China and Pakistan have aspired to create a regional alliance comprising the Arab countries, Central Asian Republics, Iran, Afghanistan, and Turkey, and SCO could most likely help that dream come true. "But there is more to it than meets the eye. The lynchpin connecting these countries will be Gilgit Baltistan, a disputed region rivaling Serbia in area. Although constitutionally a part of India and bordering China's Xinjiang province, Afghanistan, and Tajikistan, Gilgit Baltistan remains in Pakistani control since 1947."The political uncertainty owing to India's claim to the region is especially worrisome for China, which currently depends on her southern neighbor for two reasons. First, China uses transit routes of Gilgit Baltistan to reach Pakistan, Iran, Afghanistan, and the ports along the coastline of the Arabian Sea; and second, Chinese mining companies control the region's much valued mineral deposits of uranium, gold, copper, marble, and precious stones. Today, Chinese miners and their affiliates are everywhere in Gilgit Baltistan, especially in the Hunza-Nagar district, which is rich in uranium"

The KKH - a pain to travel on

The Express Tribune, July 26, 2011

HUNZA: The Karakoram Highway (KKH) is a strategic road for Pakistan. It is used by national as well as international traffic since it provides for a land border between Pakistan and China. And for the people of Gilgit-Baltistan, it provides a crucial land link to the rest of the country.

However, in recent years, it has suffered considerably from the elements. And while this is only to be expected, given the harsh terrain and unpredictable weather of the regions it traverses, what is worrying is that those in charge of its maintenance do not seem to be doing their job. The highway is badly damaged in some places and the result is that while previously it would take between 15-16 hours to travel from Islamabad to Gilgit by bus, now it takes well above 20. Moreover, a large stretch of the highway between central Hunza and Upper Hunza remains blocked for the last 20 months because of the massive landslide at Attabad.

WASA fails to ensure smooth water supply

Pakistan Observer

AZAD Jammu & Kashmir (AJK), the paradise on GILGIT: The overstuffed Water and Sanitation Agency gave a tough time to people of the city as most parts witnessed suspension of water supply due to ill-planned 'Greater Water Supply Project' due to blockade in main supply line at many places. The water supply lines are blocked due to sand and other material and the entire area is without water.

The multi-billion Greater Water Supply Project completed a couple of years back was supposed to meet requirements of consumers in the capital city of Gilgit-Baltistan. The most uncomfortable situation is seen by residents when they find no body to listen to their miseries. After repeated requests, the Superintendent Engineer, Executive Engineer and Assistant Engineer of WASA visited the affected areas but due to absence of the technical staff the matter could not be resolved.

Peace Bus Sans Kashmiris Crosses LOC

July 22, 2011

SRINAGAR: The Srinagar-Muzaffarabad bus which crossed over to other side of the Line of Control (LoC) on July 21 with 22 guests from Pakistan-occupied Kashmir had no passengers from the Kashmir valley onboard. Official sources stated that not a single resident of Kashmir valley crossed over to the other side. This is for the 50th time that no resident of Kashmir valley went to PoK in the weekly bus during 2011. Officials attribute procedural delays as the reason behind less number of Kashmiris from this side availing the service.

However, 40 PoK residents, who had arrived here in previous buses, returned to their homes after completing their stay here. They stated 22 fresh guests from PoK arrived at Kaman post, the Military post on the LoC in Uri sector after crossing the Aman Setu (peace bridge) on foot. A Kashmiri also returned from across the divide after completing his stay with family members separated in 1947.
