Multiple reports in the current issue indicate that the United States has finally agreed to participate in funding the controversial Diamer Bhasha dam project. Statements given by the US Ambassador to Pakistan, Richard Olson, that the issue would be taken up during the US-Pakistan Economic Working Group meeting to be held in Washington in December 2012 hint at growing interest of US in such projects. Pakistan is keen to have US on board so as to induce other international agencies such as the IMF (International Monetary Fund) and the World Bank to provide funds for raising this ambitious project. Besides, the US has already given $ 150 million for the expansion of the Mangla Dam located in the so called AJK. Given that the Chinese presence in PoK is already entrenched, the emerging interest of US in the region is likely to unfold interesting geopolitical dynamics in the coming days.

A two-day conference comprising delegates from both J&K and PoK was held at Muzaffarabad on November 6-7, 2012. The symposium jointly organised by the AJK Women for Peace Organization and sponsored by a German organization, Friedrich Naumann Foundation (FNF) caught media attention as it was first of its kind- a peace conference comprising only women delegates with a cross section representation from academia and civil society. The conference deliberated on important issues- the focus being on the humanitarian side where participants urged easing up cross LoC movement and setting up of a taskforce to address such problems.

The dilemma over levying taxes in Gilgit Baltistan continues. There is a raging debate on whether it is appropriate to impose taxes in the region keeping in view its ambiguous political and constitutional status.

Diamer-Bhasha dam still top priority, says Wapda chief

The Nation, November 28, 2012

LAHORE: Wapda chairman Raghid Shah reiterated that construction of Diamer-Bhasha dam is top priority of the government. In a media briefing at Wapda House on November 27, he stated that land acquisition and infrastructure development work in the project area was in progress. "Process to acquire land both in Gilgit Balitistan and KP was continuing. The work on 14 local contracts is in full swing for construction of model villages for affectees, Wapda offices and colonies, contractor's camps, road, etc. in the project area. Expression of Interest (EoI) had also been called for consultancy of the project," he noted. So far, no international lending agency has committed funding for $13 billion Bhasha project owing to Indian propaganda that the dam is being constructed on disputed territory. There are reports the government is losing interest on the construction of the dam.

"World Bank has not directly refused funding for the Diamer-Bhasha," replied Raghid Shah on a question about the project but he refused to comment when asked why India was opposing the construction of the dam.

A Wapda spokesman has clarified that sometimes back the CDNS DG had expressed desire for investment of CDNS funds in Diamer-Bhasha dam project. However, during the course of meetings with Wapda officers, CDNS DG subsequently expressed his inability to make direct investment of funds in Diamer-Bhasha dam project.

In Gilgit Sunnis hold Muharram procession in defiant of TTP

The Express Tribune, November 24, 2012

GILGIT: The religious harmony apparent at a Muharram procession in Gilgit on November 23 suggests the scars left by bloody sectarian strife do not have to haunt the region and its people forever. Dozens of Sunnis led a mourning procession in the heart of the city, where until recently Shias and Sunnis were victims of violent incidents stage-managed by extremist elements. The move is also a blow to the Tehreek-e-Taliban Pakistan (TTP), which had threatened to attack Muharram processions in Gilgit-Baltistan. G-B s administration was informed of these threats in a letter by the interior ministry last week. A Sunni delegation comprising elders and the youth from Kashrote and Yadgar areas convened at the Imambargah in Majini Muhalla, where they joined hundreds of mourners.

Human rights in Gilgit-Baltistan

ANI, November 19, 2012

GENEVA: As the general security situation

deteriorates in South Asia, and particularly in Pakistan, the world is becoming increasingly aware of the, as yet, relatively unknown area of Gilgit-Baltistan of Jammu and Kashmir a region which is administered from Islamabad despite the wishes of the region's peoples.

The increasing presence of Chinese personnel further complicates the situation, adding another dangerous component with the involvement of a third nuclear power in a volatile region. Jurgen Creutzmann, Member of European Parliament and Chairman of the Friends of Gilgit-Baltistan European Union, slammed Pakistan for numerous reports of Human Rights Violations in Gilgit-Baltistan area. He particularly showed concern over incidents of terrorism and sectarian violence perpetrated by armed groups. There has been a major escalation of sectarian violence because of Islamabad's encouragement to fundamentalist Sunni groups. There has been an increase in violence against women and political groups seeking self-rule.

He specifically asked Vice-President/High Representative of the Commission in European Parliament that “why can't International Media and Human Rights Organizations get easy access to Gilgit-Baltistan?” He slammed the Pakistan Government for not giving access to them. He further added, if this continues then Gilgit-Baltistan, heaven on earth, would turn into hell sooner or later.

Dawn, November 18, 2012

MUZAFFARABAD: The lawyers' wing of Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz (PML-N) challenged the recent induction of two judges in the Azad Jammu Kashmir (AJK) Shariat Court, alleging that the AJK president and the prime minister had doled out the two posts between themselves.

Speaking at a press conference on November 17, the central vice-president of PML-N lawyers' wing, senior advocate Sadaqat Hussain Raja, stated the president and prime minister had chosen one lawyer each from their respective constituencies for appointment against the two vacant posts. ## G-B govt asked to lift ban on gemstones transport

The Express Tribune, November 18, 2012

GILGIT: The Trade Development Authority Pakistan (TDAP) has asked the Gilgit-Baltistan (G-B) government to lift its ban on transportation of gemstones. In a letter to the G-B chief secretary, TDAP maintained that the ban should be lifted as it is "illegal" and a violation of the trade policy, adding that transportation of precious stones is not banned anywhere else in the country.

TADP made the request after receiving a letter from the G-B Gemstones and Mineral Association, in which the association urged the authority to play its role in lifting the ban on the transportation of gemstones from G-B, if not on its mining. The association maintained that the ban has left hundreds of locals associated with the industry jobless. G-B hosts over 500 varieties of gemstones including amethyst, aquamarine, spinel, corundum, emerald, garnet, peridot, ruby, pyrite, moonstone, fluorite, pargasite, quartz and tourmalines.

Last year, the G-B Legislative Assembly (GBLA) imposed a ban on mining and transportation of gemstones from G-B on grounds that the stones are being taken away at throwaway prices, causing great loss to the national exchequer and to the locals. In the ruling, the speaker also noted that a committee comprising members of the Gilgit-Baltistan Council and GBLA will be set up to legislate on the issue.

When contacted, an official of the G-B government, requesting anonymity, noted that the ban on mining and transportation of gemstones will be discussed soon to formulate a policy.

ISLAMABAD: Pakistan hopes that the new Chinese leadership will help clear a $448 million loan pledged for the strategically important Neelum Jhelum Hydropower project located in Azad Jammu and Kashmir (AJK). A loan for the 969 megawatt (MW) project had previously been put on the backburner due to a controversy regarding the award of a multibillion rupee project to a Chinese firm. In August 2012, the Supreme Court (SC) of Pakistan had annulled the Rs14 billion 'Safe City Project' for Islamabad due to allegations of corruption. The former Chinese leadership had linked the disbursement of the loan with the award of the Islamabad Safe City project to a Chinese firm. The cancellation of the project meant the loan was withheld.

Tahir Khalil, Senate body now says Pakistan has six provinces

The News, November 7, 2012

ISLAMABAD: In another blatant blunder after the Interior Ministry declared Kashmir as part of India in its statement in the Supreme Court, a parliamentary body on November 6 declared the Azad Jammu and Kashmir and Gilgit-Baltistan as provinces of Pakistan.

The Senates Standing Committee on Inter-Provincial Coordination on November 6 issued the agenda for its meeting, in which AJK and Gilgit-Baltistan were declared provinces of Pakistan. Besides that, the official communiqué of the committee meeting also says that affairs of six provinces were discussed in the committee. It is interesting to note that the meeting chaired by Senator Farrukh Aqil was also attended by Minister for Inter-Provincial Coordination Mir Hazar Khan Bijarani, PPP Senator Mukhtiar Ahmed and JUI-F's Senator Ghulam Ali, but none of them objected as to when these six provinces were created. Pakistan has never declared AJK as its province nor Gilgit-Baltistan was declared as Pakistan's province.

The GB people

The News, November 7, 2012

Interior Minister Rehman Malik has been accusing the people of Gilgit-Baltistan of being involved in the killings in Karachi and Balochistan. In fact, he never lets go of any opportunity to lay the blame for the killings in these places on the people of GB, most probably because he knows that the 2.5 million people, who are not even represented in the national parliament, will not be able to challenge him. The minister needs to substantiate his allegations with proof, if he has any. If he cannot prove the allegations, then he should keep silent.

A number of people from Gilgit-Baltistan have been killed in Karachi and other cities of the country, but so far none of the killers have been arrested or even identified. Will it be justifiable, in this situation, to say that the people of Pakistan are killing the people of GB? It will not, because, it is not the truth. Even if some people of GB are involved in terrorism or other crimes, the learned senator shall not mention the name of GB, because they are in no way representatives of the peaceful people who live in the highlands.

The Express Tribune, November 10, 2012

MIRPUR: There is need to ease traffic across the Line of Control (LoC) by simplifying clearance procedures and introducing scanners at various points, stated a declaration issued on November 8. The declaration was issued by members of a dialogue on “Building bridges, bringing women voices into peace building in Kashmir” that concluded in Muzaffarabad a day before. The declaration also called for extending travel facility to refugees living in Azad Jammu and Kashmir (AJK) since 1990.

Additionally, it demanded more interaction between women entrepreneurs, educationists, lawyers, journalists, students and conflict resolution experts on both sides for setting up a task force with a mandate to address human rights and humanitarian issues.

Furthermore, it called for removing land mines that obstruct free movement of the people and are responsible for civilian casualties. It emphasised on gradual demilitarisation; including that of Siachen glacier and converting it into a peace park, providing justice to the victims of the conflict, especially widows, missing persons, displaced youth, end of abuse of human rights, scrapping of draconian laws and impunity.

Usman Cheema, Delay increases Diemer Bhasha Dam cost by $2b

The Nation, November 8, 2012

ISLAMABAD: No international donor ever committed to provide funding for the construction of Diemer Bhasha Dam project and the government has been unnecessarily delaying the project that increased its cost by $2 billion. Sources stated that though the government held several meetings with the ADB but the bank never made commitment to provide funding for the project although it also never stated that it would not provide funding for the project.

Against that 'hope' given by ADB, the government also claims that it caused $2 billion loss in terms of increasing the cost of project but in reality the government itself is more responsible for that loss.

Khalid Mustafa Sethi steps up efforts to collect revenue

The News, November 6, 2012

ISLAMABAD: Nargis Sethi, who took charge as secretary of the ministry of water and power approximately 28 days ago, commented that the ministry had been extraordinarily slow in hydro generation development for the last 20 years. Resultantly, consumers pay large amounts of money for electricity due to the 70 percent share of thermal-based electricity in the whole power generation mixture.

Sethi stated that the ministry's capacity had eroded and so it was unable to respond effectively to all projects, particularly hydropower projects. She stated she has taken steps to restructure the ministry by inducting three more joint secretaries, three deputy secretaries and six section officers to effectively cope with the challenges that the ministry is faced with.

Shabbir Mir, Federal tax levy: Lawmakers from G-B vague over tax issue

The Express Tribune, November 5, 2012

GILGIT: The top brass of Gilgit-Baltistan's (G-B) government remains vague over whether the federal government's decision to impose an income tax has been fully endorsed in the region. “The decision to impose income tax in the region has not yet been taken,” Chief Minister Mehdi Shah noted on November 4 when asked if his government was endorsing the decision to impose income tax in G-B, a region whose constitutional status is still ambiguous.

He stated that tax would not be levied without first signing a written agreement between the regional government and the federal government over certain points. Shah's remarks stood in clear contradiction with officials who had confirmed the decision to impose an income tax.

A member of the G-B Council, Amjad Hussain recently confirmed that the decision to impose income tax has been taken and a notification was also issued to this effect. He, however, stated the decision should have been preceded by a written agreement to avoid legal complications that might surface due to G-B's constitutionally disputed status. When the same question was posed before Governor Pir Karam Ali Shah, he neither denied nor accepted that a decision to this effect had been taken.

He, however, noted that “every respectable nation pays taxes to live with honour and dignity so it shouldn't be an issue if we have to pay taxes.” The governor further stated that if an income tax was imposed, then the regional government would have sufficient money at its disposal to invest in development projects.

Gilgit-Baltistan: EU Speaks Up Against Human Rights Violations

November 20, 2012

In a recent press release the European Parliament criticizes Pakistan for severe Human Rights violations in Gilgit-Baltistan. As the general security situation deteriorates in South Asia, and particularly in Pakistan, the world is becoming increasingly aware of the, as yet, relatively unknown area of Gilgit-Baltistan of Jammu and Kashmir a region which is administered from Islamabad despite the wishes of the region's peoples. The increasing presence of Chinese personnel further complicates the situation, adding another dangerous component with the involvement of a third nuclear power in a volatile region.

Jurgen Creutzmann, Member of European Parliament and Chairman of the Friends of Gilgit-Baltistan European Union, slammed Pakistan for numerous reports of Human Rights Violations in Gilgit-Baltistan area. He particularly showed concern over incidents of terrorism and sectarian violence perpetrated by armed groups. There has been a major escalation of sectarian violence because of Islamabad's encouragement to fundamentalist Sunni groups. There has been an increase in violence against women and political groups seeking self-rule.

He specifically asked Vice-President/High Representative of the Commission in European Parliament that “why can't International Media and Human Rights Organizations get easy access to Gilgit-Baltistan?” He slammed the Pakistan Government for not giving access to them. He added, if this continues then Gilgit-Baltistan, heaven on earth, would turn into hell sooner or later.

China's expanding footprint in Gilgit-Baltistan November 5, 2012

Pakistan has not only leased out Gilgit-Baltistan to its neighbor and close ally, China, but has put at risk the region's culture, language and natural wealth. Ruled like a colony from Islamabad since 1948, Gilgit-Baltistan is today being exploited by China for its strategic and economic interest. Known for its scenic beauty, Gilgit-Baltistan is now facing another severe challenge of an ecological imbalance in nature due to the massive use of toxic chemicals while mining by the Chinese. China has built the 528 mile-long Karakorum highway without paying a single penny to the local people. In return, Pakistan gifted 2,500 sq mile area of Shamshaal in Hunza to China.
