In this Edition

During December 2013, Prime Minister of Pakistan, Nawaz Sharif, paid visit to both parts of PoK i.e. the so called 'Azad Kashmir' and Gilgit Baltistan. During his visit to Gilgit Baltistan, Nawaz Sharif inaugurated a new terminal of the newly constructed Gilgit Airport and also conducted an aerial recce of the area which will comprise the proposed Pakistan China economic corridor. During his aerial tour of the region, Sharif was also briefed on the Attabad Lake tragedy and its aftermath, as reports included in the current issue indicate. The prime minister later headed a meeting of the Gilgit Baltistan Council during which the Pakistan Protection Bill was adopted by the council. The adoption of the particular bill, it is noted, would facilitate speedy trial and justice for the criminals of the Chilas massacre and the Nanga Parbat incident.

Before this, Nawaz Sharif visited Muzaffarabad where he presided over a meeting of the AJK Council. Under his chairmanship, the council approved Rs 14 billion budget for the AJK region. Both in the so called AJK and Gilgit Baltistan, the council is headed by the Prime Minister of Pakistan and it is this upper chamber which wields virtual powers in both parts of PoK.

Since the PML-N (Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz) government has taken over in Islamabad, there has been a great deal of clamour and levelling of corruption charges against the PPP (Pakistan Peoples Party) led government, especially in the so called AJK. It was in this context, that the opposition in AJK claimed that they have handed over evidence to Nawaz Sharif which prove AJK government's gross indulgence in corruption and malpractices. Sharif while presiding over the meeting of the AJK Council urged the government of AJK to ensure transparency in various projects. He noted that the federal government supports efforts towards AJK's growth and prosperity but the government in AJK on its part must make sure there is proper utilisation of resources and a high level of accountability.

“Talk of war and peace”

The Hindu, December 10, 2013

The denial by Nawaz Sharif of his “fourth war over Kashmir” remark, and his reiteration that problems with India have to be resolved through peaceful methods, came not a moment too soon. The Pakistan Prime Minister had been quoted as saying that “Kashmir is a flashpoint and can trigger a fourth war between the two nuclear powers at any time,” in his address to the “Azad Jammu and Kashmir Council” in Pakistan Occupied Kashmir. Denying that he had ever made such a remark, his office put out a transcript of his speech that had no mention of the word war. This is the second time that Mr. Sharif has had to deny words attributed to him on India, the first when he was stated to have made a personal remark against Prime Minister Manmohan Singh. It can only mean one of two things: either Mr. Sharif speaks without thinking through the impact of his words, only to regret it later; or what he says is deliberately distorted. Both have the same effect, of vitiating the already bad bilateral atmosphere. In this instance, the reported talk of war set off alarms in India, and was even seen in the context of the recent change at the top in the Pakistan Army.

The Express Tribune, December 10, 2013

GILGIT: The Gilgit-Baltistan (G-B) Assembly on December 9 unanimously passed a resolution demanding the Gilgit-Chitral Road be renamed and upgraded. Deputy Speaker Jamil Ahmed chaired the first day of the assembly session in the absence of Speaker Wazir Baig. The resolution demanded renaming the Gilgit-Chitral Road as 'Hindukush Highway,' which connects G-B's Ghizer valley with Chitral in Khyber-Pakhtunkhwa via the Shandur Pass. “The thoroughfare is very crucial for the local economy, particularly when the Karakoram Highway (KKH) is closed,” Ayub Shah, a lawmaker from Ghizer valley, read from the text of the resolution during the session. The 300-kilometer road remains blocked during the winter due to snow. Shandur is halfway between G-B and Chitral and is famous for the Shandur Polo festival that takes place every year. “Passengers get stuck in G-B when the KKH is closed for whatever reason,” stated Shah, referring to the KKH's recent suspension due to security concerns following the Rawalpindi riots which claimed 13 lives. KKH remained inaccessible to commuters for two weeks, leaving thousands of people stranded in G-B.

“Deeptiman Tiwary, LeT, others whip up public opinion against proposed wall on Jammu border”

Times of India, December 12, 2013

NEW DELHI: The construction of a 10-metre high embankment on the India-Pakistan border in Jammu sector by India is causing considerable hostility in Pakistan. Security agencies noted that though Pakistani PM Nawaz Sharif has extended a hand of friendship, a propaganda to form public opinion against the wall is being spread with participation from members of his own party.

The Border Security Force (BSF) recently revived a five-year-old plan to build a 179-km-long, 10-metre high mud embankment on the Jammu border to prevent border villages and its own jawans being hit by Pakistan Ranger bullets and mortar shells during ceasefire violations.

Shabbir Mir, “G-B Assembly: Put the brakes on Pak-China railway track, say lawmakers”

The Express Tribune, December 12, 2013

GILGIT: Gilgit-Baltistan (G-B) Assembly on December 11 set aside routine business to debate over the Pak-China railway track project that will pass through the region. The discussion kicked off after Pakistan Muslim League-Quaid (PML-Q) lawmaker Mirza Hussain tabled a motion requesting the speaker to address the issue of the railway track as it entailed the future of G-B. “The project was signed by the prime minister without consulting any public representative from G-B, not even the chief minister,” stated the lawmaker from Nagar Valley while voicing his reservations. “I fear the project, once completed, might deprive local people of whatever little they are earning from the existing Pak-China trade.” Hussain also raised questions over the constitutional status of the region and called for its settlement before implementing the project.

Chief Minister Mehdi Shah appeared equally upset over the proposed project as he spoke on the floor of the house. “Work on the project should not be started without talking to our representatives,” he stated on the third day of the assembly session. “We are not against development, but we need surety in advance that G-B will benefit from it,” he added. “The region is disputed and such a huge project cannot be initiated without first settling the ambiguous status [of G-B],” maintained the chief minister.

“G-B neglect”

The News, December 12, 2013

Gilgit-Baltistan has been neglected and has not been granted its due budget let alone given any funds or opportunity for socio-economic development and poverty alleviation. The geo-strategic and geo-political location of GB also adds to its importance in the region. GB alone has the potential of producing 50,000MW of energy through hydel generation. There is a long list of services the region has rendered. Patriotism is deeply ingrained in the hearts and souls of the people of GB.

Unfortunately, it has always been given a step-motherly treatment by the centre. There are no industries in Gilgit-Baltistan and the downtrodden population solely depends on outsourcing products of daily consumption. It is pertinent to mention that the area had been enjoying subsidies on wheat since the 1970s. These have now been withdrawn by the federal government under the IMF's policies. After this a sack of wheat will cost more than double its previous price. The government should revisit its decision as it would deteriorate the already worsened lives of the masses.

“GB still looking for rights”

The Frontier Post, December 12, 2013

Gilgit-Baltistan has remained a constitutional limbo since its independence on 01, November 1948. Since then it's annexed with Pakistan after defeating the 'Dogra Raj', the then rulers of GB. The region has been overlooked in a wide spectrum of aspects pertaining education, healthcare and infrastructure development. It has not been granted with its due budget let alone initiatives of socio-economic development and poverty alleviation which fall under state's responsibilities. The geo-strategic and geo-political location of GB also adds to its importance in the region. It connects our all-weather friend China via the KKH to warm water seaport. GB alone has a potential of producing 50,000 MW of energy through hydel generation. There is a long list of services the region has rendered. Patriotism is deeply ingrained in heart and souls of the inhabitants of GB, reflected in the sacrifice put forth in defending the soil. Lalik Jan, a soldier from Yasin valley of GB being awarded with the highest gallantry award of Nishan-e-Haider speaks for itself.

Shabbir Mir, “Tug-of-war: G-B seeks 'top' lawyers to defend claim over disputed territory”

The Express Tribune, December 29, 2013

GILGIT: With the row over the territorial boundary between Gilgit-Baltistan (G-B) and Kohistan district still lingering, lawmakers from G-B have decided to seek assistance from 'top' lawyers to fight out their legal battle. The bone of contention between the people of the two regions is a 10-kilometre stretch of land on either side of Basari check post, which separates Khyber-Pakhtunkhwa (K-P) from G-B. Residents of Diamer valley and Kohistan have clashed in recent times, with each claiming the disputed area.

In wake of the unrest which also put the future of the Diamer-Bhasha Dam at risk, the federal government stepped in to mediate between the two sides and formed a commission for a resolution of the issue.

“We have decided that the best available lawyers would be engaged to defend the land before the commission,” G-B opposition leader Janbaz Khan stated while chairing a meeting attended by residents of Thore in Diamer valley on December 28. Minister for Works Bashir Ahmed, Parliamentary Secretary Ayub Shah, G-B Council member Amjad Hussain, Public Accounts Committee Chairman Raziuddin Rizvi and Minister for Water and Power Didar Ali were also present among others.

Peer Muhammad, “Diamer Bhasha: Boundary dispute threatens to stall key dam project”

The Express Tribune, December 28, 2013

ISLAMABAD: As a pre-emptive measure, the federal government will soon deploy security forces along the disputed territory of the Diamer Bhasha dam site. The ownership of the land stretched over eight kilometres is disputed between the people of Diamer and Kohistan. Officials from the Ministry of Kashmir Affairs and Gilgit-Baltistan noted that a letter has been written to the interior ministry asking the federal government to deploy forces in the disputed territory to avoid any clashes between the two parties.

Dispute between the two parties had worsened in the past month after the people of Kohistan blocked the Karakorum Highway for days warning to march toward Diamer claiming the dam site. A source in the ministry of water and power stated that this boundary dispute between Khyber-Pakhtunkhwa and G-B might lead to a delay in the construction of the mega dam. “The dispute will make it difficult for the government to formally start working on the construction of the dam without settling the boundary dispute between the two parties,” stated a senior official of WAPDA. In a high-level ministerial meeting, held at the Ministry of Kashmir Affairs and Gilgit-Baltistan (KAGB), it was decided that security forces will be deployed along the disputed boundaries.

Shabbir Mir, “Curbing sectarianism: G-B lawmakers recommend use of special law”

The Express Tribune, December 27, 2013

GILGIT: Lawmakers of Gilgit-Baltistan (G-B) have proposed that the government try those found involved in fomenting sectarian clashes under the 'Code of Conduct' (CoC) law. The G-B Legislative Assembly enacted the CoC last year as a law to curb sectarian violence in the region. “This is our recommendation to the government to deal with troublemakers,” stated Amjad Hussain, an assembly member from the Pakistan Peoples Party on December 26. Recently, spontaneous violence in Gilgit had left three people dead and four injured in separate incidents. The CoC is a comprehensive law meant exclusively for individuals involved in committing sectarian violence, stated Hussain, who had played an instrumental role in shaping the law in 2012. The parliamentary committee, of which Hussain is a member, directed the government to nab those who incite violence rather than chasing ordinary criminals.

Zakat Department. The department has also recently received a handwritten letter from Prime Minister Chaudhry Abdul Majeed directing it to provide Rs200,000 to a Pakistan People's Party (PPP) woman activist, according to the sources, requesting not to be named. “On the PM's instructions, Rs50 million from the fund have already been distributed among politicians for their foreign trips and medical treatment. RAWALPINDI: Azad Jammu and Kashmir President Sardar Mohammad Yaqoob Khan visited the Poonch House on December 23 and warned against any attempt to get the property vacated and dispose it of at a 'throwaway price'. Poonch House is one of the buildings the Dogra ruler of the formerly princely state of Jammu and Kashmir owned in areas that are now part of Pakistan. All these places, commonly referred to as 'Kashmir properties,' are in the administrative control of the federal Ministry of Kashmir affairs. However, after the construction of the Kashmir House in Islamabad, major part of the president's office was taken over by the ministry, except for three rooms which became the camp office of the AJK election commission.

“SEEDs being sown to manage 'park between earth and sky'”

The Hindu, December 2, 2014

The Central Karakoram National Park (CKNP), the largest protected area in Pakistan spread over 10,000 sq. km covering four districts in Gilgit Baltistan province, could well be the country's most charming and sustainable tourist destination if a community-driven programme of conservation gets its way. According to Raffaele Del Cima, Country Operation Manager and Project Director of the Pakistan-Italy government-funded project Social, Economic and Environmental Development (SEED) for the CKNP, 40 per cent of the area is covered by glaciers and it has a unique environment with rare flora and fauna. The project focuses on villages on the boundaries of the park and they are a doorstep to the CKNP, dubbed a park between the earth and the sky.
