The United States (US)-Pakistan Energy Working Group meeting was held in Washington in November 2013. During the meeting, the Pakistani representatives strived hard to convince their US counterparts for further supporting the ambitious Diamer Bhasha dam project located in Gilgit Baltistan. The US has already committed $ 20 million for the project, part of which is supposed to be spent on conducting feasibility studies for the dam. Similarly, Ahsan Iqbal, Pakistan's minister for Planning, Development and Reform, made an earnest appeal in Washington to the international community and the international financial institutions (IFIs) to come forward and support this project, often described to be critical to Pakistan's future. Pakistan is facing acute energy crisis domestically and it hopes to improve the situation by building of this massive 4,500 MW dam.

Meanwhile, reports also suggest that since the World Bank has shown preference to the Dasu dam (a smaller project located in the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province), Pakistan has gone ahead and requested the Bank to complete formalities for approval of the $ 700 million loan. At the domestic level, the government in Pakistan has been facing a lot of pressure as for not to give up so easily on the Diamer Bhasha project. While the government has been consistently stating that it is still very much committed to the project, the huge cost and unavailability of funding agencies has withheld the project for a long time. Since there was not much headway on the Diamer Bhasha project, it seems, Pakistan is thinking of at least getting started on one of the projects (read Dasu dam) which could partially address its growing energy requirements in the meantime.

The Silk Route festival was held successfully being attended by diplomats of a host of countries including Ukraine. Notably, at least 5 Ukrainian nationals were killed in Nanga Parbat massacre in June 2013. The Silk Route festival was held primarily to address the losses the tourism industry was facing post the ghastly terrorist attack on mountaineers near Nanga Parbat.

Shabbir Mir, “Seven acquitted in G-B politician's murder”

The Express Tribune November 22, 2013

GILGIT: A Gilgit-Baltistan (G-B) court acquitted seven people accused of killing former G-B Assembly deputy speaker Asad Zaidi and his colleague. The decision was announced by G-B Chief Court Justices Wazir Shakil and Muhammad Alam, paving the way for their release. “The lack of evidence led to their exoneration,” a lawyer stated on November 21. The acquittal reverses a decision announced earlier by an anti-terrorism court in Gilgit. The court had sentenced Shakil Ahmad, Mansoor Alam, Mirbaz Khan, Amjad Wali, Farooq, Arshad Aman and Faizan to death last year, prompting them to appeal against the decision. Former deputy speaker Zaidi, a resident of Skardu, had been murdered in April 2009 in Gilgit city after assailants ambushed his vehicle on Park Road.

Tariq Naqash, “Thousands demand AJK PM's removal”

Dawn, November 25, 2013

CHAKSAWARI: Thousands of people at a rally in the hometown of AJK Prime Minister Chaudhry Abdul Majeed on November 24 demanded removal of “the corrupt rulers” in Azad Jammu and Kashmir. “The base camp of (Kashmir) freedom movement has practically fallen in the hands of thugs and robbers involved in massive corruption, but now the days of corrupt rulers are numbered,” stated AJK's former prime minister Barrister Sultan Mahmood at the gathering organised by the so-called Awami Ittehad, an alliance of local leaders. Barrister Mahmood stated that many Peoples Party AJK workers and a majority of the members of Legislative Assembly had lost faith in the leadership of Mr Majeed because of his alleged incompetence and corruption. “I don't believe in hollow statements and unfounded allegations. I have proved with documentary evidence that Chaudhry Abdul Majeed is the most corrupt ruler in our history and his further stay in power would annihilate Peoples Party,” he stated. In July, Mr Mahmood was named as successor of Mr Majeed in a no-confidence resolution against the latter in accordance with a constitutional provision.

“AJK Supreme Court issues arrest warrants for Secretary Finance”

Business Recorder, November 29, 2013

The Supreme Court of Azad Jammu and Kashmir on November 28 issued bailable arrest warrant to secretary finance AJK on non-compliance of the court order and issued a contempt of court notice to him. A division bench of the apex court while hearing an appeal related to financial matters directed the official to appear before the court with necessary record for but he ignored the court orders despite several approaches by the court officials. The learned bench observed that this state of affairs, prima-facie speaks that the secretary and additional secretary finance were intentionally avoiding complying with court's directions. Therefore, the bench ordered to issue a bailable warrant of arrest to the secretary and directed to issue show cause notices to both the officers as to why a contempt of court proceeding may not be initiated against them. Both the officers were directed to file their comments before the next hearing on December 16.

Baqir Sajjad Syed, “Militants who killed mountaineers were trained in Miramshah”

Dawn, November 20, 2013

ISLAMABAD: The gunmen who killed 10 foreign mountaineers and a local helper in Diamer (Gilgit-Baltistan) in June belonged to Tehrik-i-Taliban Pakistan (TTP) and had been trained in North Waziristan's town of Miramshah. "The attackers belonged to Tehrik-i-Taliban," Dr Ata-ur-Rehman, the home secretary of Gilgit-Baltistan, told the Senate's Foreign Affairs Committee on November 19. The official placed before the committee a classified report about the incident, which stated the attackers were involved in sectarian killings in the country in 2012.

The official stated the attackers were trained in Miramshah, which has been a target of US drones. TTP chief Hakeemullah Mehsud was also killed in Miramshah in a drone attack. The government has sought to start a dialogue with the Taliban in an effort to make them end violence that has claimed thousands of lives. Some initial contacts were made by the two sides before the killing of Mehsud, which left the nascent peace process at a standstill.

“In defiance: G-B govt 'rejects' withdrawal of wheat subsidy”

The Express Tribune, November 21, 2013

GILGIT: The Gilgit-Baltistan (G-B) government categorically 'rejected' the federal government's decision to withdraw subsidy on wheat and impose a ban on recruitments. The decision was taken during a cabinet meeting chaired by Chief Minister Mehdi Shah in Gilgit, G-B Information Minister Sadia Danish stated on November 20. Under a special package for the region, G-B has been receiving two million wheat bags annually from the federal government on subsidised rates since a long time. If the subsidy is now withdrawn, a 40 kilogramme bag will cost more than double the current price, which is Rs740.

“The chief minister will take up the issue of subsidies with the prime minister shortly to ensure it continues or is at least withdrawn gradually,” Danish, who has recently been given charge of the information ministry noted.

“G-B in limbo”

The News, November 20, 2013

This refers to the excellent article by Ghazi Salahuddin, 'Getting to know G-B' (November 17). The writer is correct in saying that if the constitutional issues are not addressed in time in Gilgit-Baltistan, the dissent there has the potential to transform into a massive nationalistic movement. However, it may not be appropriate to consider the 2014 elections of the GBLA for fully understanding the differences there. First, because the nationalist parties do not have a significant presence in all constituencies and second, federalist and religious-political parties are gaining ground in the region, capitalising on sectarian grievances. Third, because the establishment will do all it can to contain the nationalist parties or alliances. There is a strong possibility, however, that the 2014 elections in Gilgit-Baltistan will be contested on the slogans of protection of sectional or sectarian interests.

Ghazi Salahuddin, “Getting to know G-B”

The News, November 17, 2013

When we reflect on sectarian strife in Pakistan, some atrocities committed in Gilgit-Baltistan stand out, along with terrorist attacks on the Hazara community in Quetta. It seems so outrageous and even unreal that this should happen in locations that are so serene and picturesque. After all, people living in high mountains and in remote valleys are historically very peaceful and open minded. So, what has changed in recent years in these otherwise blissful surroundings?

These were some of the thoughts I carried with me when I visited Gilgit-Baltistan about three weeks ago as a member of the Human Rights Commission of Pakistan's fact-finding mission. In that sense, it was not a touristic excursion to some of the most enchanting scenery in the world. A conscious effort was made to probe the state of affairs at a human level. And this became a very educative experience. There were many surprises revelations.

“Ill-planned: AIOU Gilgit campus plan runs into snags”

The Express Tribune, November 14, 2013

ISLAMABAD: The plan to construct a regional campus of the Allama Iqbal Open University (AIOU) in Gilgit city has run into snags, as government officials and locals have raised objections about its current location. The university's Vice-Chancellor Dr Nazir Ahmad Sangi had to face an embarrassing situation when he along with Gilgit-Baltistan Governor Pir Karam Ali Shah reached the site on the bank of Gilgit River to perform the ground-breaking ceremony of the campus. The locals and officials of G-B government expressed skepticism about location of the campus, saying the building, if constructed, would be at the risk of floods in the summer. The governor also argued that such a huge building could not be constructed on the bank of the river.

Shabbir Mir, “Permanent status: Govt regularises 1,537 health dept employees”

The Express Tribune, November 14, 2013

According to a notification issued by the government on November 12, these include accountants, drivers and lady health supervisors working in various projects run by the health department. The employees made permanent include 1,385 lady health visitors (LHVs) who had earlier boycotted a polio vaccination drive in the region. ### “Preventive measures: In AJK, security on high alert for Ashura”

The Express Tribune, November 15, 2013

MUZAFFARABAD: Security has been put on high alert across Azad Jammu and Kashmir (AJK) for Ashura after a hand grenade blast in Bagh in which a terrorist was killed and another injured during a police operation on November 12. The security plan for Muharram has been revised after the Bagh terrorist incident, stated a senior police officer who is also a member of the investigation team tracking the terrorists' links, requesting anonymity. Four districts, Muzaffarabad, Rawalakot, Bagh and Mirpur have been declared sensitive during Ashura. Additional policemen have been deployed in sensitive districts to avert any untoward incident during the Ashura processions.

Apart from the district administrations, commissioners and deputy inspectors general will monitor security in highly sensitive districts. All vehicles entering Bagh, Muzaffarabad, Mirpur and Rawalakot will be checked at main entry points. “We are trying to find out a clue to who provided logistic support to these terrorists, which area and installations they wanted to target and which entry point they used to reach Bagh,” stated the police official stated, while talking to The Express Tribune.

Dr Shabir Choudhry, “Coal in Kotli exploited by Pakistan”

November 14, 2013

In my last article on the subject of economic exploitation, 'Our Green Gold exploited by Pakistan' I provided details how Pakistan is making millions of dollars annually from so called Azad Kashmir from our forests. A few days ago it was discussed in the social media that Pakistan is also taking out coal from Kotli district of Azad Kashmir. Dr Aftab Hussain asserted that he has seen trucks loaded with coal and leaving the area. Also someone pointed that why is that we people are unaware of what are our natural resources and what goes on in this small territory called Azad Kashmir.

First thing to remember is that research and studies are sponsored by different government departments and universities in independent countries; and as we are not independent and the government imposed on us is there to care for interests of Islamabad and not to investigate about our resources and how they are exploited by those who occupy us.

“Combating terror: Passing-out parade of AJK police held”

The Express Tribune, November 13, 2013

MUZAFFARABAD: The passing-out parade of Azad Jammu and Kashmir (AJK) Anti-Terrorist Police was held on November 12 at Pakistan Army's Chinar Division Training Centre in Patiaka, some 20 kilometres from Muzaffarabad. On the occasion, police commandos demonstrated their newly-acquired skills in combating terrorism. Azad Jammu and Kashmir Inspector General of Police (IGP) Malik Khuda Bakhsh Awan stated the training would help the state police deal with incidents of terrorism and street crime. It is one of the three access points which the terrorists followed to reach the base camp after a trek of nearly 10 hours.

“They (the suspects) have been arrested from Niyat village and booked under clauses of the Anti-Terrorism Act,” stated a police official in Chilas, headquarters of Diamer Valley. The vehicle used for the purpose has also been seized from the residence of Habibur Rahman. The letter was sent to the WB by the Economic Affairs Division (EAD), marking the beginning of a departure from the current government's stated policy of first building Diamer Bhasha and then starting work on Dasu. An official of the EAD confirmed that the government approached the WB to finance the project. As the WB was more than willing to finance the Dasu project over the 4,500-MW Diamer Bhasha dam, it immediately started the process and an appraisal mission of the WB is already in town, according to sources in Water and Power Development Authority (Wapda). The mission will hold wrap-up meetings in Islamabad this week and decide a date for presenting the project in front of the Board of Directors of the WB to approve a $700million loan, the sources stated.

Associated Press of Pakistan, November 5, 2013

WASHINGTON: Describing Diamer-Bhasha dam as critical to future progress of Pakistan, Minister for Planning, Development and Reform, Ahsan Iqbal stated the country would bring into use all available resources as well as international support to materialize the multi-billion dollars projects. Ahsan Iqbal, who outlined Islamabad's development plans under the 2025 vision to a Washington audience of experts, later also stressed in a media interaction the need for Pakistan and all international partners to work in an environment of mutual trust to accomplish the goals of regional stability with 2014 transition in Afghanistan.

If we do not build this dam which will take around nine years for its completion we will face a dire water shortage crisis --- our food security is dependent on this very project, he stated, addressing an event at the International Food Policy Research Institute. He appealed to the international community and international financial institutions to support the country in building this energy and water reservoir project, which domestically enjoys tremendous national consensus of all provinces.

In his presentation, Iqbal earlier underscored the criticality of the Diamer “Bhasha dam to the country's development by likening it to the importance that Pakistan's nuclear program had to its defense and was pursued at great financial cost. Together with Dasu, he stated, Diamer Bhasha dam will form lifeline of water supplies and energy for Pakistan. He stated the U.S. Congress has already endorsed financial support for initial work on Diamer Bhasha dam and expressed the hope that with broader support from international partners a consortium would be established in near future to push the project.

Khurshid Zaman, “Attabad Landslide”

Business Recorder, November 1, 2013

In January 2010, Attabad Landslide, was a natural disaster of such magnitude which shook the whole administration of Gilgit-Baltistan and National Highway Authority (NHA). Pakistan Army was asked to tackle the critical situation, as the lake created by the landslide was swelling each day. A spillway cut by FWO solved the problem and threat of lake burst was averted. In phase-II it was decided at the highest level to bring the water level down by 30 meters and FWO won this difficult project by competing with high ranking US and Chinese companies.

Work started in the month of October 2010 when the temperature was freezing cold and first coffer dam was blasted in January 2011 which brought the lake level down by 1.5 meter. The second coffer dam was blasted in March 2011 and it lowered the lake level another 2.5 meter thus making an encouraging start of 4 meter in one season. It is to be noted that work on this project was only possible during winter season when flow of water into river Hunza was minimum and it was the most difficult time to work due to icy cold weather. During summer there was no possibility of making a coffer dam due to high flow of water. So only 6 months were available in a year for working on the actual project.

The 3rd coffer dam was blasted in February 2012 and lake water came down by another 6 meters. After the concerted efforts of motivated and dedicated workforce of FWO, the lake level was reduced by 27 meters during last winters. The work will again start in October 2013 and we are hopeful to achieve the target of 30 meters at the end of this year.

The highway was sealed from November 14 a day before Muharram 10 to avoid any untoward incidents. However, in the wake of the Rawalpindi incident on Ashura, the suspension was prolonged due to protests along the 600 kilometre-long highway. The G-B government has remained in contact with the Khyber-Pakhtunkhwa (K-P) government over the closure but delayed the decision to reopen the KKH as it didn't get clearance from K-P.

“Alarming: Malnourishment in AJK widespread, says report”

The Express Tribune, November 10, 2013

MUZAFFARABAD: The health department of Azad Jammu and Kashmir (AJK) has failed to reduce malnutrition and infant mortality across the region. According to a recent United Nations (UN) survey, out of nearly 17,000 pregnant or lactating women and more than 60,000 children who were examined 38 per cent women and 21 per cent children were found malnourished. The World Food Programme-funded survey, revealed in a report recently, was conducted in Muzaffarabad, Bagh, Neelum and Hattian Bala. It stated that malnourishment was causing physical and mental disabilities on a wider scale and was also a major cause of infant mortality. AJK health officials say the infant mortality rate in the region is 56 per 1,000 live births.

“Cultural festival: Silk Route event aims to lift sagging tourism”

The Express Tribune, November 8, 2013

ISLAMABAD: The three-day Silk Route Festival (SRF) 2013 has provided the locals of Gilgit-Baltistan (G-B) with an opportunity to attract foreign and national tourists to experience their unique culture and landscape. The occasion gave the locals a chance to exhibit their art, culture and traditional heritage to the delegates of the Silk Route member states which include several countries such as China, Egypt, Japan, North Korea, South Korea, Kyrgyzstan, Azerbaijan, Ukraine and Indonesia after almost 13 years. The event was aimed at reviving tourism and trade in the region as the Silk Route was the first bridge formed to connect the East and West. G-B governor Pir Karam Ali Shah, who inaugurated the event at the Karakoram International University (KIU) stated “G-B has much to offer to the rest of the world and its potential can be utilized by making investments in the region”.

Ukraine ambassador Volodymyr Lakomov became the first official from his country to visit Gilgit-Baltistan (G-B), after five of his Ukrainian compatriots were murdered alongside five other trekkers at Nanga Parbat in June 2013. This incident was a serious setback to the region's tourism industry. Chief Secretary Youns Dhaga in his speech stated, “the objective of the event was to explore future collaboration between the Silk Route countries, we are overwhelmed by the response of foreign delegates”. The event was not only focused on the tourism industry but it also involved the interaction of foreign delegates with the local communities through which they were exposed to the rich cultural legacies of this area.
