- Bangladesh to provide transit facilities to Bhutan; An Information Super Highway connecting India, Bhutan, Nepal and Bangladesh to be completed by 2012

According to sources, Bangladesh would be providing transit facilities to Bhutan, by opening up its Mongla port. Banglabandha land port will be used as an entry and exit point for Bhutanese transit goods. An inter-ministerial meeting is slated to be held some time soon to discuss the Draft Agreement on Transit between Bhutan and Bangladesh.¹

Meanwhile work on the construction of an information superhighway linking Bhutan, Bangladesh, India, and Nepal is in progress. The project estimated to be completed by 2012, would link Siliguri with the three countries, enabling an economic, cultural and a social interface between the concerned rural communities inhabiting the region.²

The Asian Development Bank has approved a grant of USD 21.6 million for Bhutan Rural Renewable Energy Development Project. The project intends to facilitate the government’s outreach to rural households through a mix of both on-grid and off-grid power supplies.³

In other developments, some media reports claimed that Bhutan would soon recognize rights of the Christian population living in Bhutan.⁴

Vietnam, on November 5, opposed a Chinese agency's move to provide map data that violate Vietnam's sovereignty in the East Sea. Vietnam said that it requires the Chinese side to promptly remove data on violative map and observe the common views of the two countries' leaders on maintaining peace, stability, not complicating and expanding conflicts in the East Sea.75

ASEAN will take the initiative to participate in dialogues with the United Nations (UN) and other organisations of good will such as the Asian-African Legal Consultative Organization (AALCO) to improve the role of international law in key areas. Vietnamese chargé d'affaires at the UN, Ambassador Bui The Giang, emphasised this at an AALCO's meeting on November 2.76

In other reports, bilateral trade between India and the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) is likely to touch $50 billion in 2010. India and ASEAN achieved the $45 billion target in 2008-09.

C. USA
(November 1-7, 2010)

- Republican Party captures the House of Representatives and reduces the majority of Democratic Party in the US Senate; Republicans promise to respond to crippling budget deficits

In the mid term election, the Republican Party has captured the House of Representatives and reduced the majority of Democratic Party in the Senate. Reports noted that the Republicans who have achieved victory over state capitols across the country are promising to respond to crippling budget deficits with an array of cuts. Given the Republicans’ reticence in increasing taxes, the principle policy decision that is being taken is to cut government expenditure. The worrying factor is that neither party has shown any signs of having a clear action plan to solve the economic and unemployment problem that persists in the US. This is the reason why the theme of President Obama’s visit to India has been advertised as an expedition to get jobs for Americans. It is clear that the unemployment in the US is significantly influencing the U.S. agenda.

II. ENERGY REVIEW
(November 8-14, 2010)

- Coal India Ltd is in talks with U.S. mining corporations aimed at buying stakes in coal mines; Cairn Energy Plc not sure about closing the deal with Vedanta Resources

According to its Chairman, Partha Bhattacharya, India’s largest Cola producer, Coal India Ltd. is in talks with U.S. miners Peabody Energy Corp. and Massey Energy Co. to buy stakes in coal mines with long-term off take agreements. The state-run Indian company has been seeking to secure coal assets overseas to meet growing demand from local utilities, which aim to add 113 gigawatts of power generation capacity over the next seven years. India currently has a power generation capacity of 164 gigawatts.\textsuperscript{80}

In other developments in the energy sector, Cairn Energy is in doubt over whether it will be able to close the deal with Anil Agarwal’s Vedanta Resources on the sale of its stake in its Indian outfit. Cairn appeared to be showing a hint of uncertainty after a senior executive of the Cairn Energy is selling 40-51 per cent out of its 62.38 per cent stake in Cairn India to London-listed Vedanta Resources for $8.48 billion.\textsuperscript{81}
