- Afghanistan-Central Asia Dialogue III in Balkh; ISIS is creating ‘little nests’ in Afghanistan, Warns US Chief; Jihad waged for development of country, Afghans should not flee to Europe; Mi 25 attack helicopter gifted to Afghanistan reaches; Afghanistan inks two accords with Azerbaijan; India approves completion of Salma dam project at revised cost of $268m; Public perception about Pakistan would change through actions; Afghanistan signs grant agreements worth $128 million with World Bank; Parliament objects Russia’s contacts with Taliban; NATO, US military commander seeks to keep more troops in Afghanistan.

The third conference between Afghanistan and Central Asia has kicked off in the capital of northern Balkh province. Experts from Afghanistan, Kazakhstan, Turkmenistan, Uzbekistan, Tajikistan and Kirghizstan will exchange views on mutual concerns and interests. The two-day expert-level talks begun on December 16 and will continue till December 17 in Mazar-i-Sharif. Atta Mohammad Noor, acting governor of Balkh province, while talking to the gathering this morning said that the region and rest of the world should fully cooperate and support efforts for the stability in Afghanistan. Noor added that security of the region and world is connected to the security of Afghanistan. “History has proved this,” he said, adding that world won’t be secured if there is no security in Afghanistan. Afghanistan-Central Asia Dialogue III is jointly organized by the Institute for International Studies and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Afghanistan-Central Asia Dialogue I and II were also held in Afghanistan respectively in 2013 and 2014. Afghanistan-Central Asia Dialogue aims to identify the reasons for the gap between the potential and actual state of cooperation and to recommend effective ways and policies for strengthening cooperation and connectivity between Afghanistan and the Central Asia.<sup>1</sup>

The Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS) terrorist group is creating ‘little nests’ in Afghanistan as the group has stepped up efforts to gain foothold and expand its activities in the country. The US Secretary of Defence Ashton Carter warned regarding the emergent threat of the terror group during a surprise visit to Afghanistan on December 18. Following a meeting with the acting Afghan defence minister Masoom Stanikzai, Carter said the threat posed by ISIS terror group is being tracked very closely. The remarks by Carter comes shortly after the commander of the US and NATO forces in Afghanistan Gen. John Campbell said the loyalists of the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS) terrorist group are attempting to establish a regional base in Jalalabad, the capital city of eastern Nangarhar province. In an interview with The Associated Press, the commander of the US and NATO forces in Afghanistan, Gen. John

Campbell, said that foreign militants from Syria and Iraq had joined the loyalists of the terror group in eastern Nangarhar province and are trying to consolidate links with the leadership of the terror group based in Syria and Iraq. Meanwhile, Pentagon released a report regarding the situation of Afghanistan on the same day, stating that overall security has deteriorated dramatically during the second half of 2015 as the country continues to face threats from both the Afghan insurgency and extremist networks, including the Taliban, the Haqqani Network, and to a lesser extent al Qaeda.<sup>2</sup>

With dramatic surge in the number of Afghans leaving the country with majority heading towards European countries amid growing violence, the Taliban militants group in Afghanistan has issued an unusual statement urging the Afghans to remain in the country, insisting that they wage jihad for the development of the country. The statement by the Taliban group was released and days after reports emerged that some of the Afghan migrants are purchasing threat letters forged by certain individuals who are charging considerable amounts in the black market to issue the letters in a bid to help the migrants easily go through the asylum process. "While the Islamic Emirate sees the corrupt Kabul regime as the main driver behind the mass migration of our countrymen, it calls on all its countrymen fleeing the lap of their motherland towards the uncertainties of drowning in dark seas and being killed or held prisoners in foreign lands to choose the path of patience and perseverance by enduring the little hardships inside their country instead of illegal migration and defaming the Islamic Emirate by presenting fake threat letters," the statement reads. Despite the group is blamed for majority of casualties incurred to the civilians, however, Taliban said "The Islamic Emirate is waging Jihad so that the country is developed and our countrymen provided with a prosperous secure life under the shade of an Islamic system. Hence no one should be fooled by the propaganda against the Taliban and Mujahideen. The Islamic Emirate has done and will continue to do everything possible to aid and provide serenity to our countrymen."<sup>3</sup>

India has delivered its first major offensive military platform to Kabul, with a Mi 25 attack helicopter reaching Afghanistan earlier this month. The first of the four Russian origin choppers that have been gifted to the neighbouring nation has arrived in Afghanistan, with three more on the way, senior officials have told the scribe. The attack helicopters, designed to take on fortified enemy positions and flying in troops to locations prone to heavy ground fire, will join the Afghanistan Air Force that already operates three of the Indian built Cheetal light helicopters. The delivery marks the first time India has gifted offensive combat capability to Afghanistan, a sensitive topic in the past due to strong objections by Pakistan. In the past, India has transferred non-lethal equipment, including vehicles, transport choppers, communication equipment and medical supplies to Afghanistan. However India is a major training partner with Kabul sending across cadets for various courses as well as basic officers training programmes. India is currently in the process of retiring its Mi 25 chopper fleet that are being replaced with newer generation Apache choppers that have already been contracted from the US this year under a government-to-government deal. The Mi 25 transfer is the second helicopter dispatch to take place this year. In April, India delivered three military choppers to Kabul weeks ahead of the first visit by Afghanistan President Ashraf Ghani. The three Cheetal utility helicopters were manufactured by Hindustan Aeronautics Limited (HAL) with Afghan pilots and technicians trained to operate them.<sup>4</sup>

The visiting Afghan delegation signed two accords with Azerbaijan officials on December 22. The documents include a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) "On cooperation in the sphere of labour, social protection and employment" and an agreement "On cooperation between Azerbaijan Television and Radio Broadcasting Closed Joint-Stock Company and the National Radio Television of Afghanistan (RTA)". The MoU was signed by Afghanistan's Minister of Foreign Affairs Salahuddin Rabbani and Azerbaijan's Minister of Labour and Social Protection of Population Salim Muslumov while the agreement of cooperation in media sector was inked by Sultan Ahmad Bahen on behalf of RTA and head of Azerbaijan's Television and Radio Broadcasting Closed Joint-Stock Company Arif Alishanov. The documents were signed in the presence of President Mohammad Ashraf Ghani and his Azerbaijani counterpart Ilham Aliyev. The documents were signed following a meeting between both Presidents during which it was noted that bilateral relations between the two countries have successfully developed in the political arena, and that there is good potential to develop economic ties.<sup>5</sup>

The Indian cabinet chaired by Prime Minister Narendra Modi has approved the reconstruction and completion of Salma dam at a revised cost of INR 1,775.69 crore which is equivalent to around $268,050,296. According to local media reports, the revised reconstruction cost was approved by Union Cabinet– three days before the likely visit of Modi to Kabul for the inauguration of the newly-built Afghan parliament building. "The project is scheduled to be completed by June, 2016. M/s. WAPCOS, a central public sector unit under the Ministry of Water Resources, is executing the project," a statement by the government said. The cost of reconstruction and completion of the project was revised due to foreign exchange rate variation between the Indian rupee and US dollar, increase in consultancy charges due to extended period of project completion, training of Afghan personnel etc. Built on Harirod river, the dam is expected to produce 42 megawatt of electricity and will irrigate around 75,000 hectares of agricultural land. India has played a crucial role by participating in the rebuilding of Afghanistan following the fall of the Taliban regime in 2001. Since 2002, the Government of India has committed USD 2 billion dollars to the socio-economic rebuilding of the Afghan state and society in accordance with the development priorities of the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) Abdullah Abdullah has said that Kabul recognizes change in Pakistan's policies particularly with Islamabad's assurance of working for peace and stability in Afghanistan but public perception would change through actions. "It will take time for common Afghans to be on-board. They have doubts which need to be removed through actions," CEO Abdullah said in an interview with Pakistan's leading daily on December 23. While pointing to Pakistan's breach of trust, CEO Abdullah said that Kabul was told peace talks with Taliban are taking place with the blessing of Mullah Omar but he had died two years ago. "We were told that the [peace] talks were taking place with his [Omar's] blessing... who leaked the news [of Omar's death] ... why and how this happened... this is not important anymore," he said. "What is important is why this was kept from us. It was clear breach of trust." Pakistan arranged and hosted first round of face-to-face peace talks between Afghan government and Taliban in July and the process was expected to continue but it halted when the news about Mullah Mohammad Omar's death surfaced.<sup>8</sup>

Two grant agreements worth $128 million were signed between the Ministry of Finance of Afghanistan and the World Bank, covering two key sectors – Farm Water Management Project and Hydropower Rehabilitation Project. The Ministry of Finance in a statement said $45 million of the funds has been allocated as "additional grant to the ongoing On Farm Water Management Project (OFWMP). OFWMP will continue to support efforts to improve agricultural productivity by enhancing the efficiency of water use through the rehabilitation of small-scale irrigation schemes, and helping farmers adopt new agricultural practices." The remaining $83 million of the grant has been allocated to finance the Naghlu Hydropower Rehabilitation Project (NHRP), which aims to improve dam safety and to increase the supply of electricity at the Naghlu Hydropower Plant. According to Finance Ministry the project will help enhance the reliability of the electric power system and benefit both households and industries, thereby stimulating economic development and growth. "Both these projects outline the government's position to improve on water usage in Afghanistan and utilize them for the economic and social development of the Afghan people," said HE Eklil Hakimi, Finance Minister of the Islamic Republic of Afghanistan. "They are also intended to improve irrigation, improve access to electricity, boost jobs creation and provide more opportunities for employment in the agriculture sector in rural areas. In this context, the Afghan Parliament objected Russia’s contacts with Taliban calling it interference in Afghan affairs. While raising concerns over the contacts, parliamentarians said this is fight between two super powers and Afghans are not able to stand in rivalry. “There are concerns that Afghanistan might become a battle field for world powers,” said MP Sayed Mohammad Hassan, adding that “Fate of the people would resemble to that of Iraq and Syria.” Shinkay Karokhil, another Member of Parliament said Russia does not trust the government of Afghanistan. “That is why it has established contacts with Taliban,” she said. MP Zahir Sadat while directly criticizing the remarks of Zamir Kabulov said, “There are no good and bad among terrorists.” MPs raised concerns after Zamir Kabulov, a Russian diplomat and President Vladimir Putin’s special envoy to Afghanistan pointed that they exchange information with Taliban regarding the terrorist group of Islamic State (IS) or Daesh. However, such contacts have been rejected by the Taliban.<sup>10</sup>

As the security situation in Afghanistan deteriorating day by day, the NATO and U.S. military commander in Afghanistan General John F. Campbell seeks to keep as many U.S. troops in Afghanistan as possible through 2016. In a telephonic interview with USA Today from Kabul, Gen. John Campbell said that maintaining the current force of 9,800 U.S. troops to train Afghan forces and conduct counter-terrorism raids is vital, and that the scheduled reduction to 5,500 by January 1, 2017, should be put off as long as possible. “My intent would be to keep as much as I could for as long as I could,” he said. “At some point it becomes physics. I’m going to have to get them out.” Gen. Campbell will be Washington soon to brief senior leaders on the security situation in Afghanistan and troop levels required for their missions. “My job as commander on the ground is to continually make assessments,” he said. “Every time I’ve gone to the president and said, ‘I need X,’ I’ve been very, very fortunate that he’s provided that. So he’s been very flexible. It’s actually been conditions based as we’ve gone forward. “If I don’t believe that we can accomplish the train, advise and assist and the (counter-terrorism) missions, then I owe it to the senior leadership to come back and say, ‘Here’s what I need.’ If that’s more people, it’s more people.”<sup>11</sup>

Pakistan

(December 14-January 3, 2016)

- Mess Caused by Past policies of military and political elite; Railway inducted into larger project of CPEC; Recognition of fighting Taliban on increase in Pakistan; Much awaited Afghan peace talks may restart soon; Genuinely interested in improving tie; Change of government in Pakistan's restive region; Zehri offers dialogue for political reconciliation in Balochistan; Can't expect much from India dialogue; US ups pressure to choke terror groups' financing; Ministers in the dark about outcome of army chief's Kabul visit.

In an impassioned speech in the National Assembly on December 18, Minister for Interior Chaudhry Nisar Ali Khan held the past policies of the military and political elite responsible for bringing the country to a level where it has become difficult to govern. "We are all responsible for creating this mess in the country, where it is easy to commit bad deeds and people find it difficult to do good things," the minister said while winding up a debate on the performance of his ministry. Even worse, he added, there was no difference between the good and bad in the country. Chaudhry Nisar cited a number of incidents to substantiate his claim about mis-governance the country had descended into and explained how the present government was trying to clear the deck. "In a meeting during the previous PPP time, which I attended as a leader of the opposition on national security of the country, the then army chief General Ashfaq Parvez Kayani presented a list of banned organisations present in the country. When I contested the figure based on information which the government had been presenting in the then National Assembly, in response, the army chief said actually there was some miscommunication," the minister said, highlighting the chronic lack of coordination among government departments.<sup>12</sup>

The government has planned to install and upgrade railway tracks under the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) project. Under the plan, a railway line will be developed from Gwadar to Quetta and Jacobabad via Besima tehsil in Balochistan and a 560km track will be laid from Bostan to Kotla Jam on the main line-II via Zhob and Dera Ismail Khan and another 682km track will be laid from Havelian to Khunjerab, said the report quoting Radio Pakistan's website. The upgradation of 1,872km track from Karachi to Peshawar via Kotri, Multan, Lahore and Rawalpindi (including Taxila-Havelian) – along with dualisation of the track from Shahdara to Peshawar – will also be carried out. According to the report, 1,254 kilometres of railway track from Kotri to Attock City via Dadu, Larkana, Jacobabad, Dera Ghazi Khan, Bhakkar and Kundian will be upgraded.<sup>13</sup>

There is an increasing recognition in Pakistan that to defeat the TTP, they must also fight the Afghan Taliban, says a senior US official. "And that creates an opportunity that we will want to pursue as much as possible," Ambassador Richard Olson told the Senate Foreign Relation

Committee. In an earlier testimony, Mr Olson had told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that the US had held candid discussions with Pakistan on its short-range nuclear weapons and Pakistan was willing to engage with the US on the issue. "I think there is increasingly a recognition on the part of the government of Pakistan that there is significant bleed over between the Pakistani Taliban and the Afghan Taliban. This is one of the motivations for their desire to that it is no longer as simple for them as it may have been in the past even if they in principle agree to distinguish between good and bad Taliban," he said. In his second testimony this week, Mr Olson said terror had always been at the centre of dialogue between the two countries, adding that in all discussions US asked Pakistan to take action against the Haqqani network and Taliban.<sup>14</sup>

Pakistan-brokered peace talks between Afghanistan and Taliban insurgents could restart in early January after weeks of pressure from partners including the United States and China, officials in Islamabad and Kabul said. Pakistan's army chief General Raheel Sharif is expected in Afghanistan this week in the latest in a series of high-level contacts between Islamabad and Kabul to restart the peace process which was broken off in July. A senior Pakistani official told Reuters the resumption of talks should take "no longer than two weeks ... I would say the first week of January we will see the process restart again." He said the current plan was for the meetings to be held in Pakistan. The aim was to bring Afghan and Pakistani leaders together with special representatives from China and the United States as well as Taliban representatives. "The understanding is that all stakeholders should be there, everyone with a stake in this," said the official, requesting anonymity as he was not authorised to speak to the media on the issue. According to a Taliban official in the movement's office in Qatar, Pakistan had also asked deputy Taliban leader Sirajuddin Haqqani, head of a Taliban-affiliated network blamed for a spate of recent suicide attacks in Kabul, to join the talks. But after repeated failed efforts, prospects for any immediate breakthrough appear distant, with a high risk the process may "crash soon after take-off", in the words of one senior Afghan official who has been closely involved. "The Taliban are suffering from leadership chaos and the movement is fractured and it is not clear who is going to talk and which side is going to continue to fight," said the official, who like others spoke on condition of anonymity because of the sensitivity of the issue.<sup>15</sup>

The United States believes that India and Pakistan now seem genuinely interested in fostering greater understanding between the two countries, says the State Department. At a news briefing, Spokesman John Kirby of the department also emphasised the need for all South Asian nations to work together to defeat terrorists. "We continue to welcome efforts by India and Pakistan to work bilaterally to solve these very difficult, complicated issues," he said Kirby while noting that both countries were victims of terrorism. Relations between South Asia's two nuclear-armed neighbours have started to warm up after an unscheduled meeting between their prime ministers in Paris earlier this month. A week after this meeting, Indian

Minister for External Affairs Sushma Swaraj visited Islamabad where both sides agreed to resume bilateral talks after two years of nerve-wrecking tensions. And the Indian media reported this week that Prime Minister Narendra Modi also planned to visit Pakistan next month. "They have started to do that (working together to improve relations) and appear to be genuinely interested in fostering greater understanding between the two countries, that's welcome. And we continue to encourage that," said Mr Kirby when asked to comment on these developments.<sup>16</sup>

Balochistan Chief Minister Dr Abdul Malik Baloch tendered his resignation to Governor Muhammad Khan Achakzai in accordance with the 'Murree Accord'. "As per the Murree agreement, I have stepped down from the post of the chief minister," Dr Malik Baloch said after submitting his resignation. An official at the Governor House confirmed that Achakzai had accepted Dr Malik's resignation. "Yes, Chief Minister Dr Abdul Malik has tendered his resignation to the governor, who has accepted it," Governor's Principal Secretary Abdul Jabbar said. He said the Services and General Administration Department had also notified the resignation of Dr Abdul Malik. The ruling Pakistan Muslim League –Nawaz (PML-N) has already nominated its provincial chief Nawab Sanaullah Zehri to be the next chief minister of Balochistan. PML-N, National Party and Pashtoonkhwa Milli Awami Party (PkMAP) signed an agreement in Murree soon after the May 11 general elections, called the 'Murree Accord'. According to its terms, December 4 this year was supposed to be the last day of Dr Malik Baloch as the chief minister of Balochistan, following which a PML-N nominee was to take over for the next two-and-a-half years. Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif, PkMAP Chairman Mehmood Khan Achakzai and Senator Hasil Bizenjo were the signatories of the agreement. "We have handed over the chief minister's slot to our partners," Senator Bizenjo said. In the meantime, the deputy speaker of Balochistan Assembly, Abdul Qudoos Bizenjo, also submitted his resignation.<sup>17</sup>

The newly-elected chief minister of Balochistan, Nawab Sanaullah Zehri, said he will continue to carry forward the policies of his predecessor Dr Malik Baloch and will make efforts to improve governance in the province. Zehri of the PML-N was elected Balochistan chief minister unopposed after Dr Baloch resigned from the post on December 23. The chief minister, while addressing the assembly, said grievances of Balochistan's people would be addressed with the development and progress on China-Pakistan Economic Corridor. He said that Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif is arriving to inaugurate the CPEC route on December 30. "Let's come for peace, we are ready for dialogue," Zehri said, while referring to political reconciliation in Balochistan. He, however, made it clear that no compromise would be made regarding attacks at security forces and civilians in Balochistan. He said attacks against Hazara community would not be tolerated anymore.<sup>18</sup>

Adviser on Foreign Affairs Sartaj Aziz on December 26 said it would not be fair to expect instant resolution of all issues during the initial phase of comprehensive dialogue between the foreign secretaries of Pakistan and India, Radio Pakistan reported. In an earlier announcement, Aziz had said that the meeting between the foreign secretaries of the two countries has been scheduled for the mid of next month. Aziz said, "Initially the focus (of talks) would be on the reduction of tensions and maintenance of calm on the Line of Control to provide relief to the people living across the LoC." He said as the dialogue proceeds, all issues would be discussed. The comprehensive dialogue between Pakistan and India will eventually focus all outstanding issues including Jammu and Kashmir, he maintained. The adviser said, "In the recent meeting between the prime ministers of the two countries in Lahore, it was decided that foreign secretaries would meet in the midst of next month to decide details of dialogue on all issues." Promotion of good neighbourly relations with all neighbours is the policy of the incumbent government, said Aziz, adding, "As this is a prerequisite to benefit from projects aimed at increasing regional connectivity and resolution of energy crisis." He said major political parties, including the Pakistan People's Party (PPP) and Pakistan Tehreek-i-Insaf (PTI), had the consensus on peace and enhanced people-to-people contacts between the two countries.<sup>19</sup>

After recent terrorist attacks in the West, the United States has increased pressure on Pakistan to prevent certain outfits from collecting donations inside the country, diplomatic sources told the scribe. The sources also said that three organisations – Falah Insanyet, Ganj Madressah and Lashkar-e-Taiba/Jamaatud Dawa – topped the US list. All three have been declared terrorist outfits by the US State Department as well as the United Nations. "The pressure to prevent these three groups from collecting donations has always been there but has increased after the recent attacks," said a diplomatic source. At a recent congressional hearing, Special US Representative for Afghanistan and Pakistan Richard G. Olson told lawmakers that terrorism had always been at the centre of dialogue between the United States and Pakistan. "There was no conversation that I had with the security establishment in Pakistan that did not include a very direct, very frank discussion about, specifically the Haqqani network, but also the Taliban in general," he said. When Chief of Army Staff Gen Raheel Sharif visited Washington last month, US officials raised this issue with him.<sup>20</sup>

In a reflection of growing civil-military disconnect on crucial foreign policy and security matters, two key government ministers expressed ignorance in the Senate on December 29 over the outcome of the army chief's weekend visit to Afghanistan. Adviser to the Prime Minister on Foreign Affairs Sartaj Aziz, who had specially been called to the Senate for the purpose, made a statement on the Indian prime minister's surprise visit to Lahore, but passed the responsibility of briefing the senators on the visit of Army Chief Gen Raheel Sharif to Defence Minister Khawaja Asif, who was not present in the house. It was during an exchange

- Dhaka court sentenced death penalty to two of the killers of blogger Abhijeet; Bangladeshi killed in BSF shooting; Municipal Elections in Bangladesh.

A Dhaka court handed down death penalty to two people and different jail terms to six others, including the chief of banned Islamist outfit Ansarullah Bangla Team, on December 31, for the killing of blogger Ahmed Rajib Haider almost three years ago. Gonojagoron Mancha, of which Rajib was a key organiser, rejected the judgment and called for protests as even though five were confessed to the killing of the blogger they were not given death penalty.<sup>22</sup>

Members of Indian Border Security Force shot dead a Bangladesh national near the Borogram border in Dinajpur on December 31, 2015, according to Bangladesh media. Lt Col Korban Ali, commanding officer of BGB-29 Battalion in Phulbari, said the BSF men of Elenbari camp under 41 BSF Battalion in Dakkhin Dinajpur of West Bengal shot Mohammad Nuruzzaman as he entered the Indian territory, leaving him critically injured. Nuruzzaman was taken to a local hospital in Dakkhin Dinajpur where he died. BGB officials strongly protested the incident and called for a flag meeting. They also urged their Indian counterpart to return the body as soon as possible. At least four Bangladesh nationals were killed in Dinajpur by BSF men in 2015. Of them, two were killed in April and two others in December, according to BGB officials.<sup>23</sup>

Australia has agreed to support to develop and maintain Sri Lanka's fishery industry on a "sound footing", the Ministry of Fisheries and Aquatic Resources says. An Australian trade delegation headed by Australian Trade Commissioner Grayson Perry recently held a meeting with the Minister of Fisheries and Aquatic Resources Development, Mahinda Amaraweera at the Ministry in Colombo. At the discussion, the Australian Trade Commissioner has agreed to extend support to provide the necessary knowledge and training, on the methods and ways followed by Australia, to the officers of the Ministry of Fisheries and to the officers of the institutions coming under the Fisheries Ministry and to conduct and maintain the fisheries industry in Sri Lanka, on a sound footing.<sup>25</sup>

Sri Lanka Army, in keeping with the new government's policy to release more security forces-held lands to the civilians, has released another 700 acres. The Army has formally released 700 acres of land held by Armed Forces in Valikamam North area of Jaffna and handed them over to the Jaffna Government Agent Nagalingam Vedanayagam, the BBC reported. According to the Government Agent 300 families have lived in the land before the war but since the boundary markers of the plots have been removed, the lands need to be re-measured before handing over to the owners.<sup>26</sup>

The Governor of Sri Lanka's Central Bank Governor Arjun Mahendran says the island nation's economy is at a stable level and the foreign reserves are sufficient at the moment. Addressing a news conference in Colombo on December 31, the Central Bank Governor said the country's economy is in a stable course and no need for an immediate loan from the International Monetary Fund (IMF). "Our reserves are quite comfortable. We have four and a half months of imports and the country is in no dire need of emergency funding," the official said. However, the country is examining the possibility to obtain a loan facility next year and may make a formal request to the global lender for a loan early next year, the Governor said.<sup>27</sup>

- Peace and tranquillity on the border is the basis for the continued expansion of India-China relations; India conveys to China that all Indian passport holders should be treated equally.

India and China agree that peace and tranquillity on the border is the basis for the continued expansion of India-China relations. However, there is no commonly delineated Line of Actual Control (LAC) between India and China. There are areas along the border where India and China have differing perception of LAC. Due to both sides undertaking patrolling upto their perception of the LAC transgressions do occur. Government regularly takes up any transgression along LAC with the Chinese side through established mechanisms including Border Personnel meetings, flag meetings, meeting of Working Mechanism for Consultation and Coordination on India-China Border Affairs and diplomatic channels. Further, in order to improve exchanges between two sides, two additional Border Personnel Meeting points has been operationalised in 2015.<sup>43</sup>

It has been conveyed to the Chinese side on several occasions, including at the highest level, that all Indian passport holders should be treated equally on the basis of reciprocity. Arunachal Pradesh is an integral and inalienable part of India.<sup>44</sup>

Prime Minister Shinzo Abe underscored that 2016 will be a year to “take on challenges”<sup>46</sup> including the structural problem of aging society and accept greater responsibility in safeguarding international peace and stability. 2016 will witness Tokyo International Conference on African Development and Japan will chair the Japan-China-Republic of Korea (ROK) Trilateral Summit Meeting. European Union (EU), ASEAN Community (AC) aims to build a peaceful, integrated and stable community which can face the regional challenges together. ASEAN has endorsed the Vision 2025 which would require the member countries narrowing down the gaps currently exist in the pillars of AC, reported Bangkok Post. However, achieving the goals set by the AC would be difficult and one of the major hurdles would be to maintain cooperation with the non-AC members who will not be eligible to get similar preferences when it comes to trade and commerce. Another challenge is to give similar priorities to the ASEAN Political Security Community and ASEAN Socio-Cultural Community along with the AEC. Though the ASEAN governments are working towards achieving the desired goals, it may take few years' time, opined governments officials and practitioners from the region.<sup>50</sup>

This will enable the legal authorities in Cambodia to desist a political leader from fleeing from the country after committing any offence and seeking shelter in other country. Currently, Sam Rainsy, the opposition leader, is abroad as he wants to avoid legal charges against him in Cambodia. This context helps one to understand why PM Hun Sen wants extension of the law for the presidents of the political parties. Since Prince Norodom Ranariddh, many political leaders in Cambodia hold dual citizenships which help them to get shelter in another country in case they face any legal hassles in Cambodia. According to reports, once operational, 50 percent of revenue will go to the state budget, 20 percent to the provincial authorities, 15 percent to the districts where the zone is located, 10 percent to CSEZ administrative expenses and the rest to an environmental fund. The land owners whose land will be taken up are likely receiving adequate compensation, said a government representative during the opening of the project.<sup>55</sup>

In his weekly address, U.S. President Barack Obama said, "What if Congress did something – anything – to protect our kids from gun violence". Obama said expressing his frustration with the "unfinished business" to control the country's "epidemic of gun violence." Obama said he has directed his staff to "look into any new actions I can take to help reduce gun violence," and he is meeting with Attorney General Loretta Lynch on Monday to "discuss our options." "We know that we can't stop every act of violence. But what if we tried to stop even one," asked the president, apparently reflecting on lawmakers who have repeatedly failed to take any action that would reduce the epidemic.<sup>56</sup>

Following a two-year review of the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ), the Defence Department on December 28 forwarded to Congress a legislative proposal outlining a number of reforms. The UCMJ is the statutory framework of the military justice system, according to a news release announcing the proposed changes. The proposal is based on the recommendations of the Military Justice Review Group, which conducted a detailed analysis of each article of the UCMJ, including the historical background of the UCMJ, current practice, and comparison to federal civilian law.<sup>57</sup>

U.S. Army Research, Development and Engineering Command scientists and engineers are stationed around the globe to explore international collaboration opportunities in scientific research and technology development, opportunities that will potentially close capability gaps for the U.S. Army. Three regional RDECOM organizations represent this international endeavour: RDECOM-Atlantic; RDECOM-Americas; and, RDECOM-Pacific. From basic science to insights on maturing technology, foreign research contributes to the development of U.S. products and provides solutions that improve American capabilities.<sup>58</sup>

On December 30, a U.S. federal grand jury indicted on terrorism charges the friend and neighbour who bought the guns for a couple who massacred 14 people in California December 2. Enrique Marquez faces up to 50 years in prison if convicted on all charges. The charges include conspiring with terrorists, lying about the gun purchase, and immigration fraud for entering into a fake marriage. The 24-year-old Marquez is being held without bail and will make his next court appearance January 6. Marquez legally bought the weapons Syed Rizwan Farook and his Pakistan-born wife, Tashfeen Malik, used in the California massacre.<sup>59</sup>

The first export of U.S. crude oil in four decades departed a Texas port on December 31, just weeks after a ban on such exports was lifted. The ship is carrying a cargo of oil from ConocoPhillips' wells in south Texas that was sold to Swiss trading house Vitol Group. In December, President Barack Obama signed legislation lifting the ban put in place during the mid-1970s in the wake of the Arab Oil Embargo. The embargo, which began in 1973, had many short- and long-term effects on global politics and the global economy.<sup>60</sup>

The Somali militant group al-Shabab has released a new recruiting video that highlights U.S. police shootings and the call by presidential candidate Donald Trump to ban Muslims from entering the United States. The video released on January 1st, 2016 may be the first instance of a U.S.-designated terrorist group using Trump's call or other current issues in the U.S. to attract followers online. Presidential candidate Hillary Clinton said last month that the Islamic State militant group was "showing videos of Donald Trump insulting Islam and Muslims in order to recruit more radical jihadists." That claim has yet to be proven. But now al-Shabab is using Trump. Its new video shows a clip of the Republican candidate reading out his demand for a ban on Muslim visitors.<sup>61</sup>

The State Department said portions of 275 emails released on New Year's Eve from Hillary Clinton's time as secretary of state have been newly classified, bringing 2015 to a close for the Democratic presidential front-runner. Clinton has said she didn't send or receive information that was classified at the time via her personal email account, which was run on a private server at her New York home. Republicans have repeatedly questioned whether her use of a private email system put sensitive information at risk. In all, the State Department said 1,274

The owner of an Afghan trucking company contracted to move supplies for coalition soldiers in 2009 has been charged in U.S. federal court with bribing soldiers in order to get contracts worth millions of dollars. A criminal complaint filed last week against Hikmatullah Shadman in U.S. District Court details a scheme involving trucking operations in southern Afghanistan and meetings with two U.S. Army members to hand them payments in bundles of $100 bills. The two soldiers, Robert Green and David Kline, have both pleaded guilty for their roles. Green was sentenced in September to 10 months in prison and a year of supervision after his release. He said that step took place December 28, when a ship carrying more than 11,300 kilograms of low-enriched uranium materials left Iran for Russia. The removal of enriched uranium is among the hurdles that Iran needs to clear under the agreement known as the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA), in order to get relief from nuclear-related sanctions. Other hurdles include removing thousands of centrifuges used to enrich uranium, and redesigning a heavy water reactor so that it cannot be used to produce weapons-grade plutonium. When the JCPOA is implemented, the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council and Germany say Iran's breakout time will have increased to at least a year.<sup>66</sup>

Meanwhile, the U.S. officials say the Treasury Department is preparing to levy new sanctions on a group of Iranians and companies in other countries connected with Iran's ballistic missile programme. The Wall Street Journal, which first reported the planned move, said the sanctions will likely be formally announced this week and include about 12 people and companies in Iran, Hong Kong and the United Arab Emirates. The sanctions would call on U.S. banks to freeze the assets of those on the list and bar individuals and companies in the U.S. from doing business with them, according to the Journal. Iran test-fired missiles in October and November. The U.S. and France said the October launch violated a U.N. Security Council resolution banning Iranian development of a ballistic missile. Iran rejected the allegations, saying the sanctions only applied to missiles capable of carrying a nuclear warhead and that their missiles had no such capability. U.S. experts said the only purpose of the missile would be to deliver a nuclear warhead.<sup>67</sup>

Defence Secretary Ash Carter offered his congratulations on December 28 to Iraq's prime minister after Iraqi forces succeeded in retaking the government centre in Ramadi from the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL). Carter said in a statement that "The expulsion of ISIL by Iraqi security forces, supported by our international coalition, is a significant step forward in the campaign to defeat this barbaric group and restore Iraq's territorial sovereignty". The operation to reach the centre of Ramadi was a significant milestone on the path to clear ISIL from the historic city and the overall campaign to defeat the terrorist group across Iraq, according to a statement released by Combined Joint Task Force - Operation Inherent Resolve officials. Ramadi's strategic location on the highway that connects Iraq with Syria and Jordan made it a prized target for ISIL, which took the city in May.<sup>69</sup>

A high-value ISIL leader killed by U.S.-led coalition airstrikes December 24 was just one of 10 ISIL leaders targeted and killed so far this month, Combined Joint Task Force Operation Inherent Resolve spokesman Army Col. Steve Warren confirmed on December 29. Speaking to reporters at the Pentagon via a live satellite feed from Baghdad, Warren said Syria-based Charaffe al Mouadan was "planning additional attacks against the West," and was directly linked to Abdelhamid Abaaoud, leader of the cell responsible for the terrorist attacks in Paris last month. The ISIL leaders were killed in coalition airstrikes that took place from December 7-27, he said, noting that several were external attack planners linked to the Paris attacks.<sup>70</sup>

On January 2, coalition military forces continued to attack ISIL terrorists in Syria and Iraq. In Syria, coalition military forces conducted six strikes using fighter and attack aircraft. Separately in Iraq, coalition military forces conducted 20 strikes coordinated with and in support of the Government of Iraq using attack, bomber, fighter, and remotely piloted aircraft against ISIL targets.<sup>71</sup>

State Department spokesman Mark Toner said Secretary of State John Kerry brought up the matter in a telephone call with Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov. However, Russia has denied causing civilian deaths in Syria. It says its airstrikes against what it calls "terrorists" are carefully coordinated with the Syrian army to avoid all civilian targets. Russia has said its mission in Syria is directed against Islamic State. Days later USS Fort Worth (LCS 3) also joined the multi-national recovery effort, along with vessels and aircraft from Indonesia, Singapore, Malaysia, Australia, the Republic of Korea, Japan, China and Russia. While tragic, the incident emphasized the value of maritime partnerships in the Indo-Asia Pacific. Allies and partner nations teamed up with U.S. 7th Fleet in more than 110 exercises to exchange information and training throughout 2015. Major exercises this year included Annual Ex, Ulchi Freedom Guardian, Malabar and nine different Cooperation Afloat Readiness and Training (CARAT) series exercises. The decision to homeport Emory S. Land in Guam supports recent moves by the Navy in relocating submarines and provides essential forward support for those units to complete their missions. US PACOM stated that the security environment in the Indo-Asia-Pacific requires the U.S. Navy to station the most capable ships forward. The Voice of America reported on December 30 that an initiative by Facebook to bring free Internet access to the poor in India has run into a storm of criticism by those who say it will violate net neutrality -- the principle that Internet providers allow equal access to all online content. In recent days, Facebook has been defending its plans in appeals directly to the public, through advertisements in leading newspapers and on huge billboards in major cities. The advertisements defend its app, called Free Basics, which gives free access on mobile phones to a handful of sites for services such as communication, healthcare, and education. The ads say the platform aims to bring a million Indians in poor rural areas online.<sup>76</sup>

In its assessment of the security situation in J&K during the year 2015, Army asserted that internal security situation in the state is "stable and peaceful" and terrorism indicators have shown a "declining trend" in the state, but cautioned against "radicalisation". ## Radicalisation & Terrorism

(December 28- January 3, 2016)

- Terrorists stormed Pathankot Air Force Base in Punjab.

A week after Prime Minister Narendra Modi made an unannounced trip to his Pakistani counterpart Nawaz Sharif's home in Lahore to signal the willingness at the top to revive ties between the two countries, heavily-armed terrorists, suspected to be members of the Pakistan-based Jaish-e-Muhammad, attacked the Pathankot airbase in a pre-dawn strike on January 2. Security forces, including commandos of the National Security Guard and Army and Indian Air Force personnel, engaged the terrorists, and gun battles through the day left at least four terrorists and three security personnel dead – there are fears that the count of dead among security personnel may be higher. It was unclear how many terrorists were in the assault team. Officials said search and sanitising operations at the airbase were continuing to eliminate the possibility that more intruders could be holed up inside. They said the terrorists were unable to enter the area where MiG-21 fighter aircraft and attack helicopters were parked. As security forces on the ground engaged the terrorists, attack helicopters took to the air. The airbase had been on high alert since December 1 evening after two incidents off the Jammu-Pathankot highway early on December 1. One was the murder of a taxi driver, and the other the hijacking of an SUV of a Superintendent of Police who managed to escape and alert
